

Forecast your cloud readiness.

Today, most organizations know that the cloud offers the potential to help their business run better. However, identifying which applications or workloads are best suited to run in the cloud, completing the actual migration work from on-premises to the cloud, and then ensuring that cloud resource consumption is optimized can be a challenge.

Fortunately, Zones can help you move forward with a cloud roadmap that transforms how your organization consumes IT. Our Zones Cloud Assessment will help you:

- > Identify the operational expenses of running a workload in the cloud
- > Understand whether a workload can easily be shifted to the cloud or if the application needs to be re-written
- > Optimize currently deployed workloads in the cloud to ensure your consumption and spend is optimized as well as workload re-structuring

How the process works.

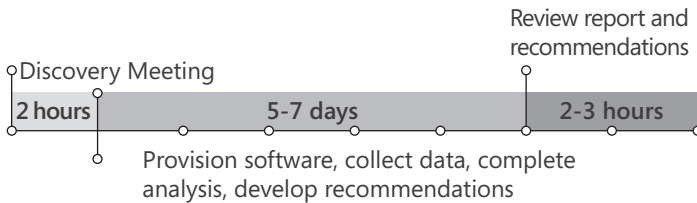

Our highly skilled technical experts have years of experience and will work with you every step of the way. Here's some of what they will help with:

- > Review the business and technical requirements of each of your workloads
- > Understand if the application is targeted to run in the cloud or stay on-premises
- > Install and configure best-in-class software to conduct the analysis
- > Analyze performance and financial data in the context of potential architecture in the cloud
- > A final report that includes recommended architecture and configurations based upon your technical requirements and financial goals and additions or removals of VMs based on your cloud strategy

Not included in the Zones Cloud Assessment are the installation of agents on virtual or physical machines and the actual migration of your resources to the cloud.
