Expectations vs. Stress

As employer expectations increase, so does employee frustration.

Employers believe they need more—20 percent more—from their employees.

Over the last three years, 80 percent of employees report that their workloads have increased—as has their stress.

The benefits of collaboration.

Fortunately, video collaboration provides a way for employees to communicate and collaborate more effectively. Companies with high employee engagement have:

lower absenteeism.

How Cisco has simplified collaboration.

With the obviously positive impact collaboration has on business, more and more businesses care about creating collaborative environments for their employees.

Since greater collaboration = greater employee engagement,

Therefore, employers would benefit from finding more effective ways to collaborate—such as with video collaboration.

And greater engagement = happier, safer, more reliable employees,
