

API SECURITY

and

MANAGEMENT TODAY

A Snapshot

86.5%

of organizations will have an API program in place within 5 years

43.2% Currently have an API program

27% Implementing one in the next year

12% Implementing one in the next 2-3 years

4.3% Implementing one in the next 4-5 years

13.5% No plans to implement an API strategy

A broad range of key business aims are driving the requirement for API programs

Mobility programs are driving

71.9%

Partner connectivity is driving

69.1%

Cloud integration is driving

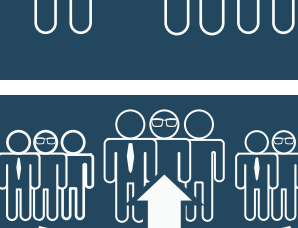

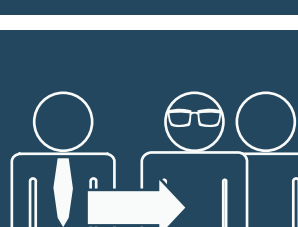

67.6%

Enabling internal developers is driving

66.9%

Fostering external developer ecosystems is driving

55.4%

"Focusing business core around API developers"

SOME OTHER AIMS

specified by respondents:

"Avoid web site grabbers by providing controlled access via API"

"IT service governance"

SECURITY CONSIDERATIONS

are key when selecting an API Management solution

Security issues in order of importance:

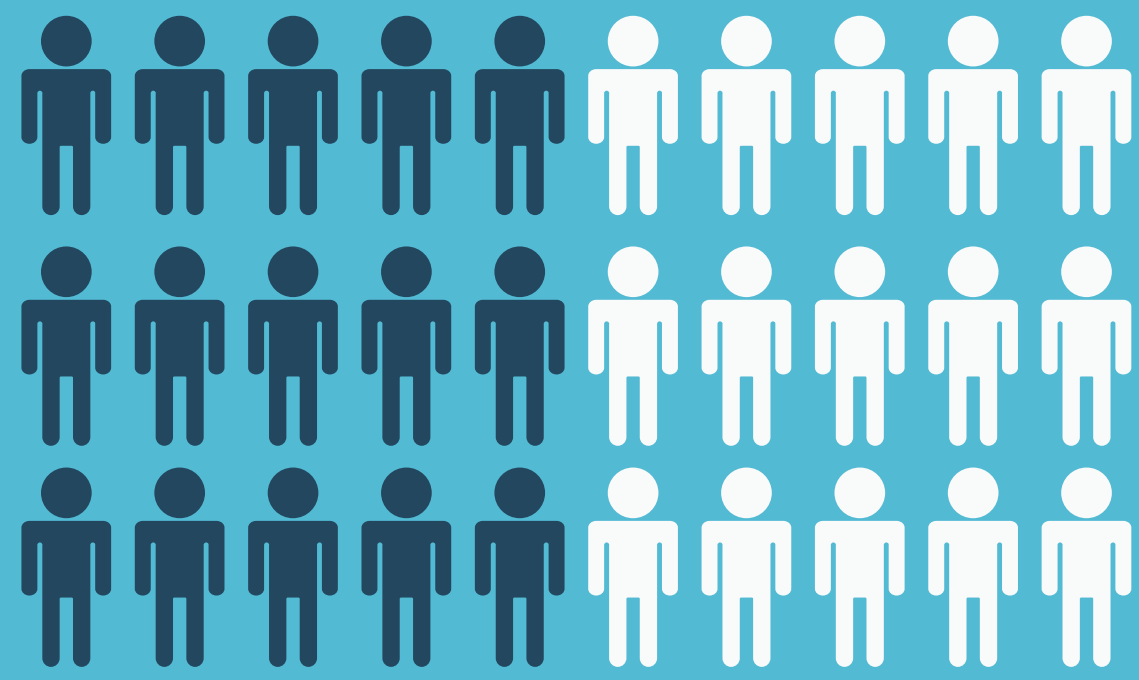

1 API data and interface security

2 OAuth and access control

3 Identity translation and federation

4 Availability assurance

5 Data privacy and integrity

49.6% think data security and privacy are the most important security considerations

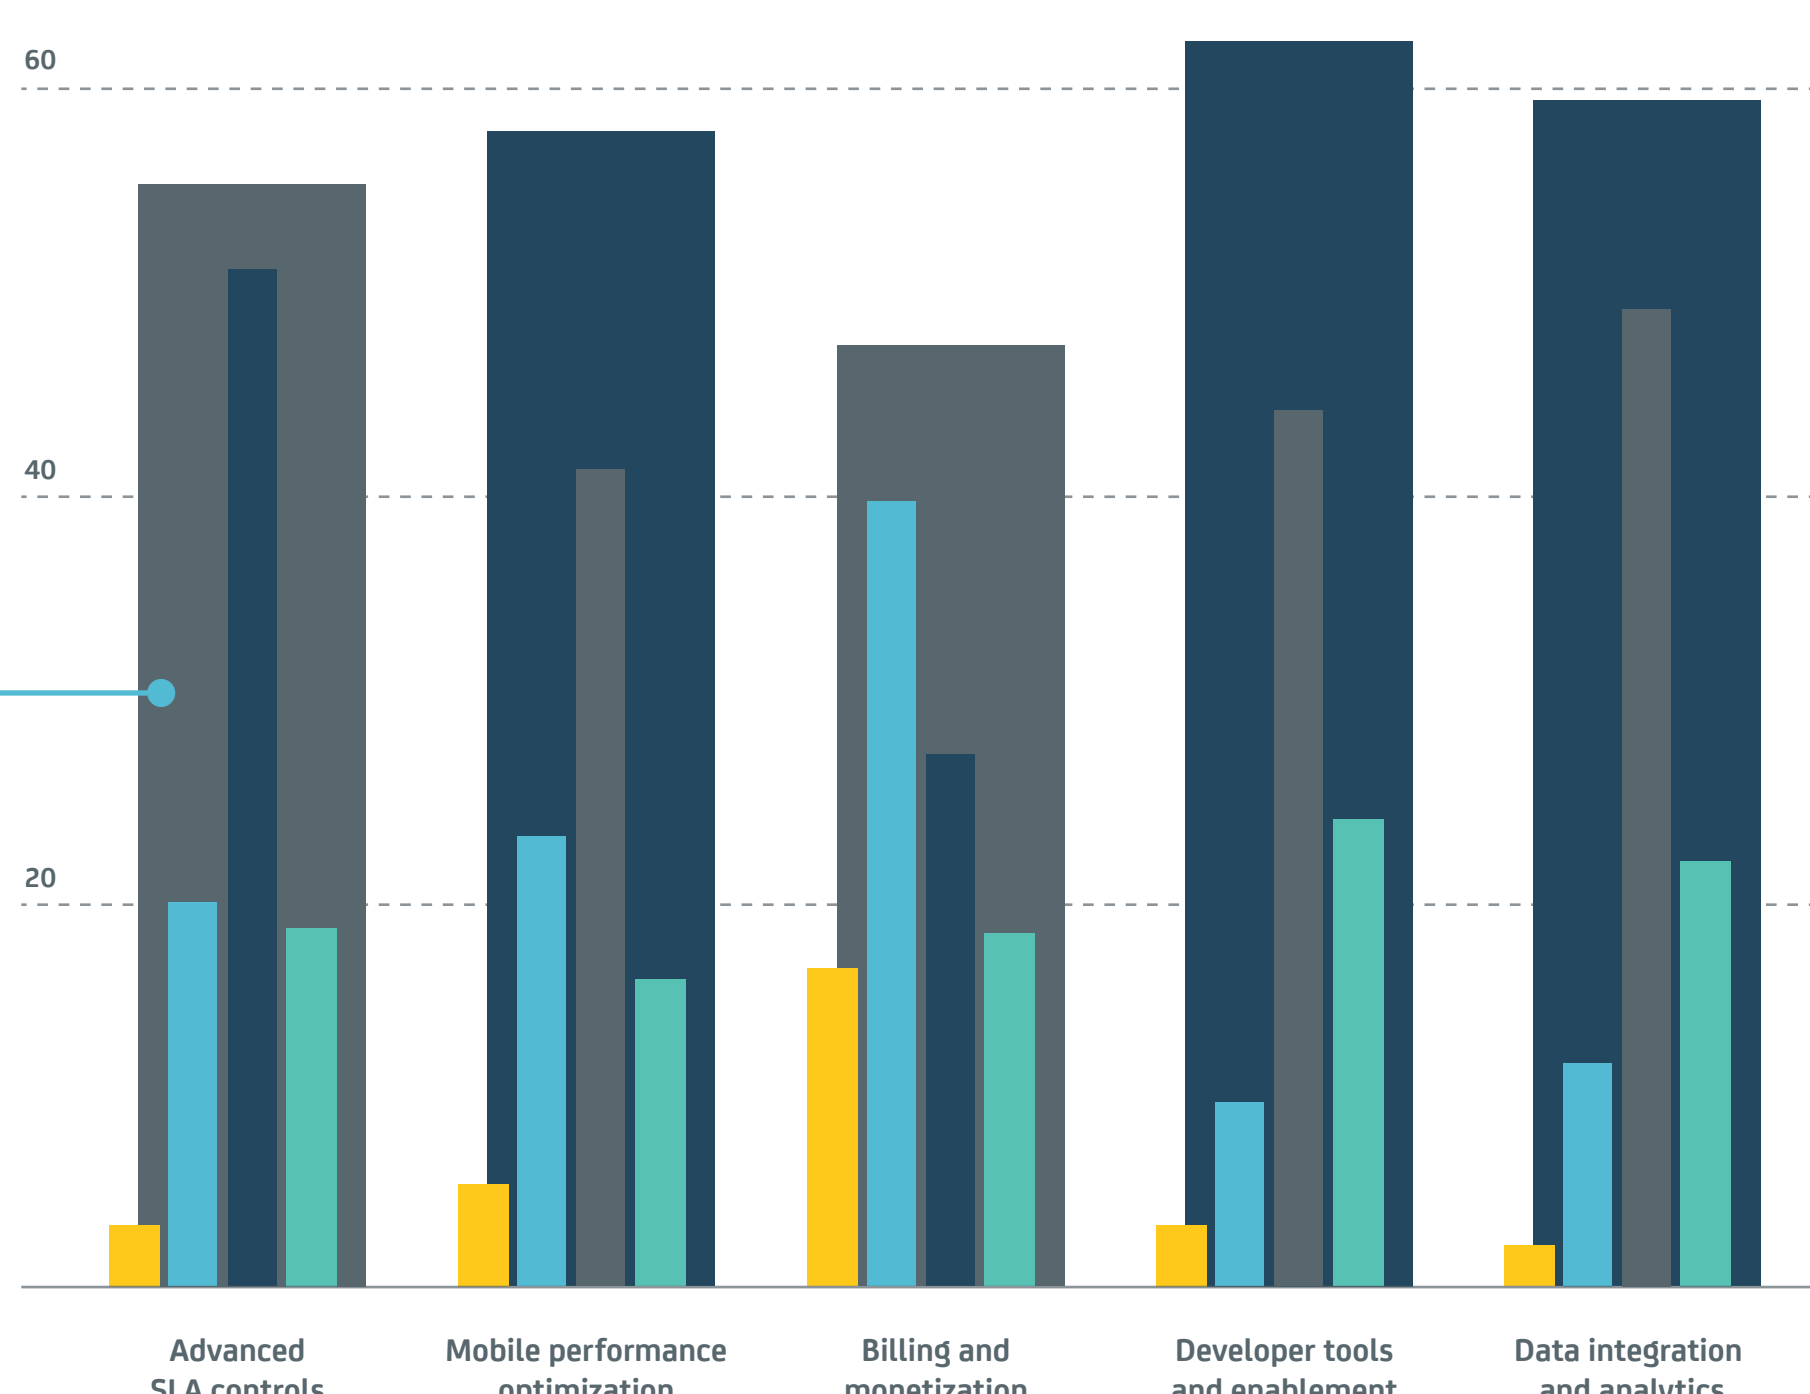

Mobile performance optimization,

developer enablement

and data analytics

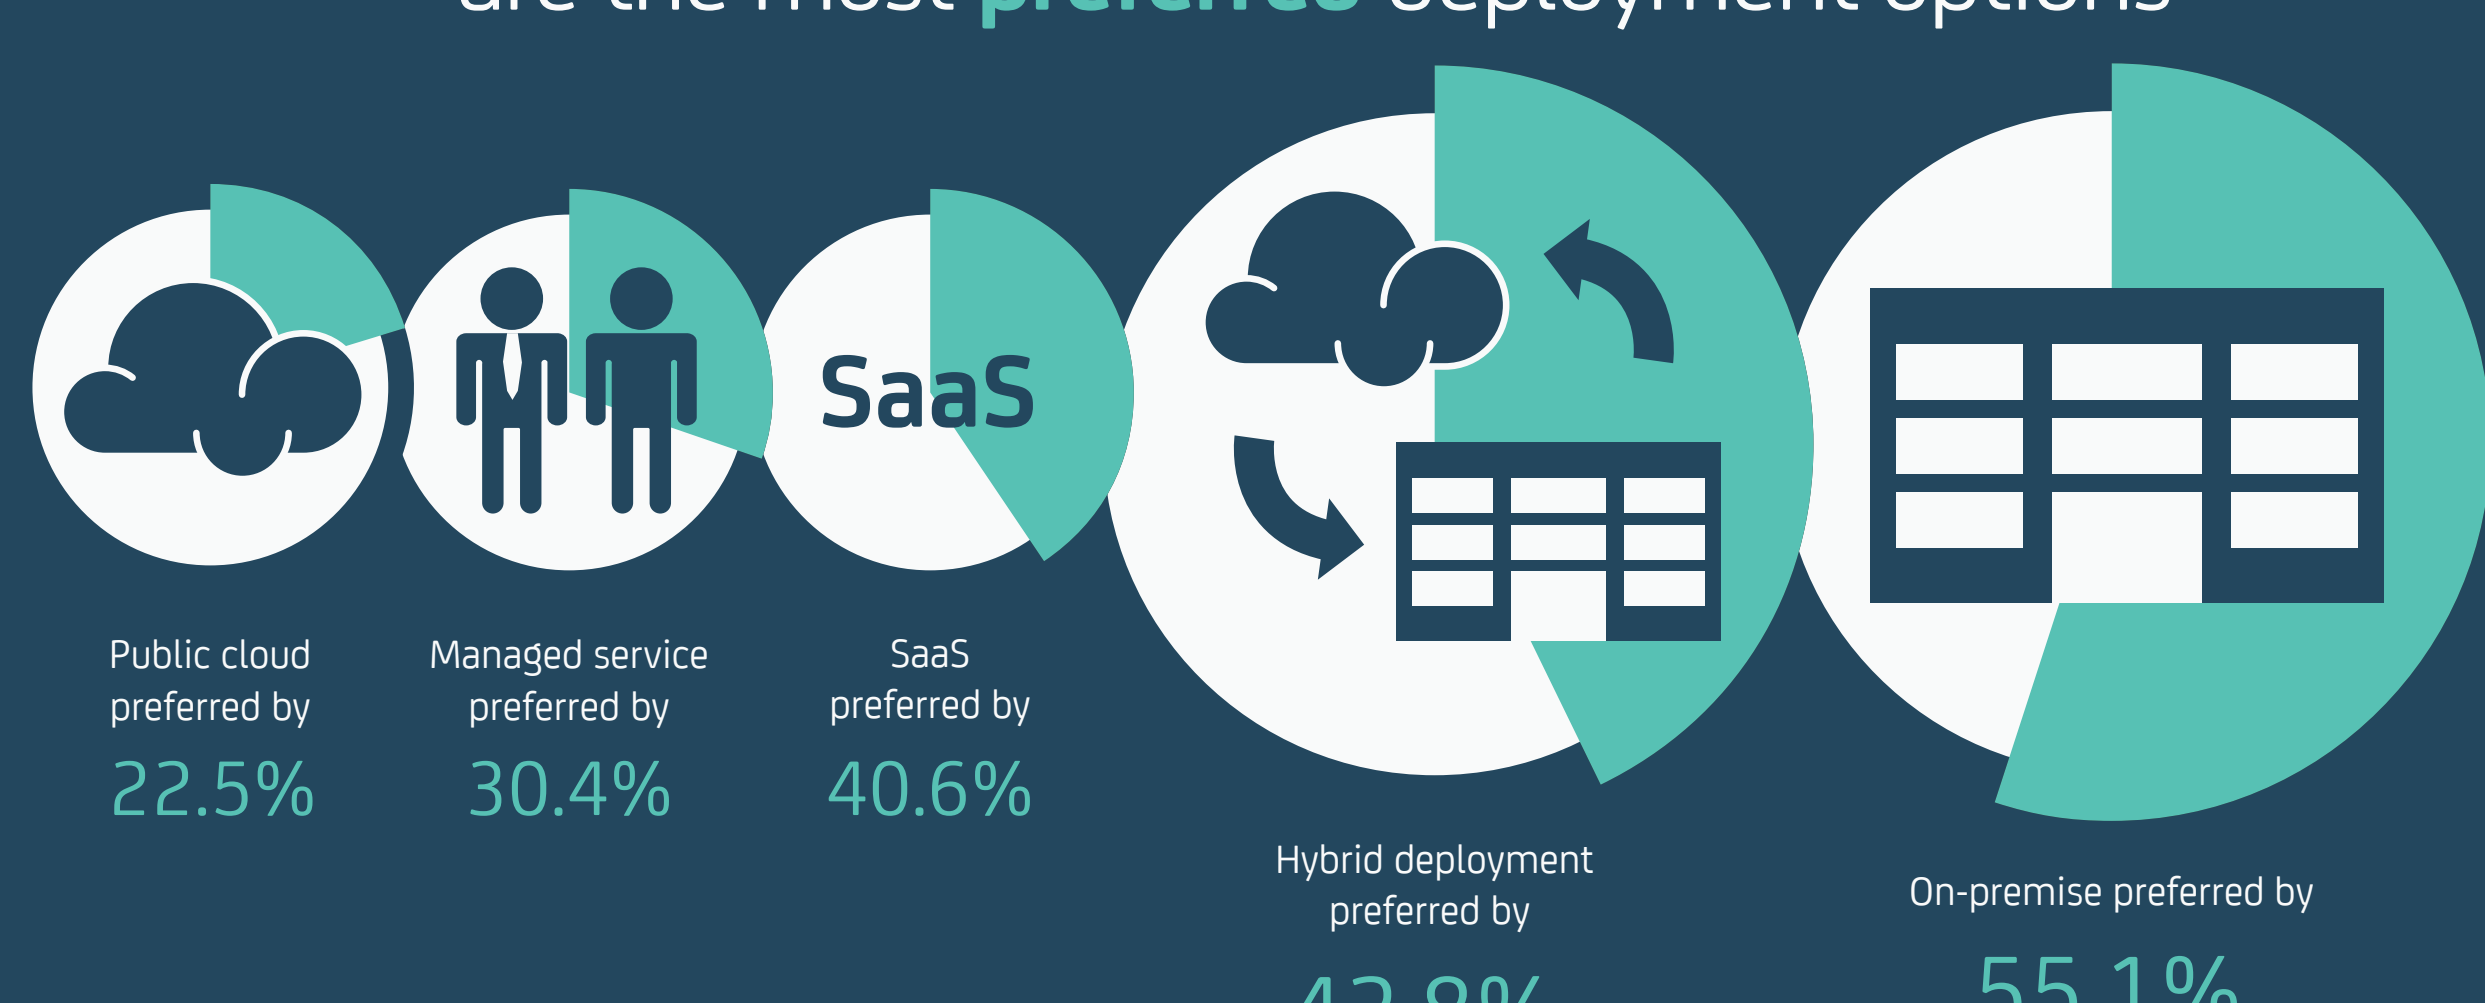

ARE KEY FEATURES IN AN API MANAGEMENT SOLUTION

Answer Options:

[On-premise and hybrid]

are the most preferred deployment options

POC evaluation

and feature breadth

are the most important considerations when selecting an API Management solution

SOME OTHER CONSIDERATIONS cited by respondents:

"Roadmap transparency"

"Maturity"

Data security, mobile access and developer engagement have become the core requirements for API Management today. Who's helping you address these needs?

This infographic was based on online surveys with over 140 API Management professionals and enterprise architects.

Learn about industry leading API Management solutions from CA Technologies: Visit ca.com/api

