Auburn, WA, March 29, 2021 — Zones, LLC, today announced its Technology Solution Centers (TSCs) have successfully fulfilled all applicable requirements and have received certification for the International Standard for Environmental Management Systems, ISO 14001:2015. With this new recognition, Zones is better poised to help clients achieve their business goals while operating responsibly.

“As a strategic initiative, our TSCs are committed to aggressively pursue zero waste, energy reduction, and pollution prevention,” said Linda Marbena, Vice President and General Manager of Technology Solution Centers at Zones. “With this ISO 14001 achievement, clients have the assurance and commitment from Zones to continually improve our operations to be more energy-efficient and maximize our environmental efforts. A certified Environmental Management System enables Zones to minimize land, air, and water pollution while offering business benefits and a healthier planet for clients, partners, and global communities.

At the same time that Zones achieved ISO 14001:2015 certification, the TSCs were also re-certified for ISO 9001:2015 (International Standard for Quality Management Systems). A certified Quality Management System enables Zones to provide even greater control over its management and production processes for TSCs located across the United States. This certification distinguishes their TSC organization’s operational processes to consistently meet quality standards in delivering IT products and services to clients.
